Signwaves

SignWaves, a collective of flautists from The University of Queensland, is creating a concert concept, Synchronous Vibrations, to bring a diverse range of flute repertoire of varying ensemble sizes from solo flute to flute choir to delight a diversity of audiences. The character and textural variation available in this format enhance the possibilities for creative and flexible programming. The group was formed in 2020 and has performed in a variety of venues from cathedral, art gallery, atrium, and outdoor settings to standard concert venues.

SignWaves is directed by Patrick Nolan, UQ Music's flute tutor and Director of Wind and Brass. They proudly boast their own composer in residence, Monash Lal.

The group has recorded a range of Lal's works with Corella Recordings (The School of Music's recording label). This is soon to be released.

The UQ Friends of Music is a community of students, staff, alumni and music enthusiasts.

We create opportunities for shared and interactive experiences that involve a diverse range of activities both at the school and off campus.

The UQ Friends of Music provides connections with staff, students and alumni of the School of Music. It contributes to enriching the cultural fabric of our community while providing opportunities to engage with local and international artists visiting UQ.

UQ Friends of Music, established in 2015 by graduates with an interest in music, is an association created and driven by volunteers that aspires to develop stronger connections with current UQ students, graduates and the wider community.

UQ Friends of Music welcomes all members of the community with an interest in music to join its collaborative association.

Members enjoy exclusive access to concerts, lectures, masterclasses and research seminars.

The convener of the UQ Friends of Music is Dr Shaun Brown.
